Labor Bill Changes Beaten

Senate Turns Back Boycott Amendments

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) and Eisenhower administration forces backing him thus suffered a double defeat. It was a turnabout from Wednesday night when McClellan led a successful fight to adopt a "bill of rights" for labor, over the objections of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), sponsor of the anticorruption bill.

But there were signs that some of the Southern Democrats who backed McClellan on the "bill of rights" might switch if, as expected, the Kennedy forces try to rip that amendment out of the

Peiping Overture Precedes Talks With "God-King"

MUSSOORIE, India (AP) -Prime Minister Nehru made a move Friday for peace between Chinese Communists and Tibet's Dalai Lama. He invited Chinese Communist representatives and their Tibetan puppet, the Panchen Lama, to visit the Dalai Lama at his home in exile here. Nehru's overture to Peiping was made at a news conference just before he conferred for four hours with the 23-year-old Dalai Lama, the Tibetan god-king. The talk, Nehru said later, was aimed at "the possibility of creating an atmosphere that might help a solution." He added that the talk had been helpful but he expected "no solution out of the hat" would result.

Precedes Talks With "God-King" MUSSOORIE, India (AP)

Prime Minister Nehru made a move Friday for peace between Chinese Communists and Tibet's Dalai Lama. He invited Chinese Communist representatives and their Tibetan puppet, the Panchen Lama, to visit the Dalai Lama at his home in exile here.

Nehru's overture to Peiping was made at a news conference just before he conferred for four hours with the 23-year-old Dalai Lama, the Tibetan god-king

The talk, Nehru said later, was aimed at "the possibility of creating an atmosphere that might help a solution." He added that the talk had been helpful but he expected "no solution out of the hat" would result.

His invitation to the Panchen Lama did not come up in the talk,

How small man seems, compared to a mountain or even a tree. And yet, how great is his potential! Man can fashion a tree into a chair, a boat, or a house. And he can, if he wants, tunnel through

Man has been created in God's own image; he has been given dominion over the earth and over all other creatures on the earth. Among the many gifts which God has given to man are intelligence, initiative and will power. But the use of these gifts must be motivated by the love of God if man is to be rewarded with peace and

Down through the ages, the Church has been teaching man that the misuse of intelligence and power brings on sin and self-destruction, while love-motivated use of God's gifts brings joy, peace of mind

Church attendance, prayer and worship will help anyone understand the proper relationship between God and man.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Down through the ages, the Church has been teaching man that

Church attendance, prayer and worship will help anyone under-

And yet, how great is his potential! Man can fashion a tree into a chair, a boat, or a bouse. And he can, if he wants, tunnel through dominion over the earth and over all other creatures on the earth.

Among the many gifts which God has given to man are intelligence, initiative and will power. But the use of these gifts must be motithe misuse of intelligence and power brings on sin and self-destruc-

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

In His

IMAGE

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs has moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily

Student Teachers Visit Route 40 School

Students in the class "Literature For Youth" at Frostburg State Teachers College, are shown above with one student in a typical scene that was multiplied all through Route 40 Elementary School in Garrett County recently. The class under the guidance of Dr. Dorothy G. Howard of the English Department of the college, made several trips to the school to tell stories to the students. Each college student had a group which they worked with during the visit telling stories that applied to that particular age level. Standing at the rear of the group are Amelia Deihl, Sylvia Hilliard, Dr. Howard, Roy True, James Kelly, Florence Faith, Mae Rice, Janet Carlson, Shirley Durst and Francis E. Harris, principal. Seated telling the story and showing an illustration from the book is Janice Diehl. The students were from the first grade. Route 40 School is one of the newest schools in Garrett or Allegany and is located seven miles west of Frostburg on Route 40 from which it received its name. Modern in every respect, the school boasts of having all of its faculty members from graduating classes of State Teachers College, a 100 per cent "State" school. Besides his duties as principal. Mr. Harris also teaches in the sixth grade. Other teachers and grades taught are: Rachel Hughes, grades 1 and 2; Zeola Robeson, grades 2 and 3; Elizabeth Workman. grades 3 and 4: Thomas Furlow, grades 4 and 5, and Lee

Student Teachers Visit Route 40 School

Students in the class "Literature For Youth" at Frostburg State Teachers College, are shown above with one student in a typical scene that was multiplied all through Route 40 Elementary School in Garrett County recently. The class under the guidance of Dr. Dorothy G. Howard of the English Department of the college, made several trips to the school to tell stories to the students. Each college student had a group which they worked with during the visit telling stories that applied to that particular age level. Standing at the rear of the group are Amelia Deihl, Sylvia Hilliard, Dr. Howard, Roy True, James Kelly, Florence Faith, Mae Rice, Janet Carlson, Shirley Durst and Francis E. Harris, principal. Seated telling the story and showing an illustration from the book is Janice Diehl. The students were from the first grade. Route 40 School is one of the newest schools in Garrett or Allegany and is located seven miles west of Frostburg on Route 40 from which it received its name. Modern in every respect, the school boasts of having all of its faculty members from graduating classes of State Teachers College, a 100 per cent "State" school. Besides his duties as principal, Mr. Harris also teaches in the sixth grade. Other teachers and grades taught are: Rachel Hughes, grades 1 and 2; Zeola Robeson, grades 2 and 3; Elizabeth Workman, grades 3 and 4: Thomas Furlow, grades 4 and 5, and Lee

There is no hope on the part of employers that the increases will be met by increased productivity. The constant pressure is to reduce production instead of increase it. Reduced production is a relic of outmoded labor economics. One of the dangerous aspects of this crisis is that Communist countries are providing increasing competition for American production. Khrushchev has specifically warned that he intends to beat the United States in the realm of world economics. He intends to take over American export markets. He is convinced he can do it because he utilizes slave labor.

The ridiculous statement is now being made vociferously in Washington that "spreading the job" will relieve unemployment. As a matter of fact this policy of reduced production of wealth will eventually produce greater unemployment by pricing labor out of the market, and by reducing the purchasing power of the American

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky What Can We Do?

Loretta K. Ferguson, write to me about A/2C James E. Ferguson Jr. He is one of the 11 airmen missing in Soviet Russia. He is one of the American airmen who was shot down by the Russians over Armenian territory on September 2, 1958. About them we know nothing. Our government knows nothing. They are "now missing" and "presumed to be dead."

Why do not the White House and the Pentagon criticism by getting a medical send a form letter to such mothers and wives saying, We do not know how to answer your inquiries. We do not know what to do. We are dealing with monsters who do not even respect the dead. It is just too bad that it is your son (or husband) who had to give his life for his country in this fashion."

Instead, these relatives of the missing men get diplomatic procedure. They write to their Congressman. He writes to the White House, sending a carbon copy to the constituent. The White House forwards the letter to the proper slot in the Pentagon. Somebody in the Pentagon writes a polite, formal letter which is assumed to jerk tears from the aforesaid mother or wife. The Congressman sends the original of this letter to the mother or wife to show his interest in his constituents. The letter is meant to be treasured. The Congressman says he can do no more short of getting the President to declare war on Soviet Russia.

The kin are left to wonder why the President is willing to go to war for the Berlin Germans, the Lebanese, and practically everyone else, but will not lift a hand for his own American soldiers.'

It is not so easy, Mrs. Hicks. In the good old days it was possible to make war on Spain because the Spaniards cut off the ear of an Englishman called Jenkins. And General Smedley Butler of the Marine Corps went through a country because a Marine was missing. But those days are over as since Soviet Russia became a Power, treaties are of no avail and international law is meaningless. The Russians do not recognize whatever is irrational and that is irrational which they regard as such.

It is all very simple. When fairly decent people get to quarrelling, they generally fight according to some preconceived rules of decency, but the Russians do not care to fight that way because it seems so stupid. In a word, if fight you must, then fight to a finish. Stomp on the enemy's face and gouge out his eyes. Give him the punishment of the thousand cuts. Keep him alive but tear his tongue out. Anything you can think of and are pleased to do. That being the case, precisely what can we do about it when our airmen fall into their hands? Mrs. Hicks uses the phrase, "this cynical abandonment of loyal Americans." Short of war, there seems to be little else that can be done. Our State Department can, of course, send some notes to Russia, but the reply will be that they know nothing about it but heard that an American plane has had some trouble somewhere. The President can talk to the first Russian that comes his way, as Eisenhower did to Mikoyan, and Mikoyan probably said that he would take the matter up with the proper authorities which means nobody at all. How many Americans are still held in

So we appeal to the International Red Cross to find out about the 11 missing American airmen. And the Red Cross sends a man from Geneva in Switzerland to Moscow and everybody is sorry that such an incident happened. The Red Cross is sorry too, but what can they do?

Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Ferguson may feel that I too am cynical. But like most Americans, I cannot afford to be. My sons may have to do their stint under similar tough circumstances. What I am describing is this: if both parties to a quarrel are gentlemanly, they will look after each other's wounded, missing and dead; will let the families know through proper channels what the situation is, perhaps through the International Red Cross.

However, we are dealing with Tartars, with the descendants of the Golden Horde, the offspring of Genghis Khan. What courtesy is to be expected of

Ike Handled Herter Appointment Properly

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON, April 24 - You can't win with some of the critics you're wrong whatever you This must have been the thought that crossed President Eisenhower's mind as he read this week some of the caustic comments about an "unnecessary delay" in announcing the appointment of Christian Herter as Secretary of State. One can readily imagine what some of the same critics who were strong for the Herter appointment would have said if they were certain he wouldn't favor the changes they hope for in pubportant appointment he has to make in this critical time in world history! And why does he appoint a sick man?'

President Eisenhower's deliberateness is to be praised rather than condemned. He knew of the arthritic condition of his Under Secretary of State. He realized the newspapers would be printing pictures of a man on crutches. So it was decided to offset that report to clear up all doubts. It took a few days to get that done.

The President talked to Mr. Herter on Monday, April 13 two days before the Wednesday on which the telephone resignation of Mr. Dulles was announced. Mr. Herter was told at that Monday conference by Mr. Eisenhower that, if the medical examination turned out all right, he would be the next Secretary of State. On Tuesday, April 14, it was announced that Mr. Herter would head the American delegation at the Foreign Ministers' Conferences in Paris and Geneva. Why, then, on Wednesday morning did the President, in speaking to the press, mention the possibility of other candidates? Because he wasn't sure at that time what the medical examination

Is a delay of a few days in announcing the appointment of a new Secretary of State such a blunder as has been described by critics? Actually, it was this very criticism - widely published in large part by those who disagree with the Eisenhower-Dulles policies — that gave rise throughout the world to the idea that the hesitation was a big mistake and that there was something behind it all which indicated a lack of

Senate Investigators Seize Hotel's Phone Call Records In Night Raid

WASHINGTON - Senate gumshoes swooped down o Washington's fashionable Woodner apartment-hotel early the other morning and confiscated the records of all telephone calls placed through the switchboard since 1956, including those of America's well-known Catholic prelate, Cardinal Spellman.

Others whose private telephone records are now in the custody of the Senate rackets committee include counselor J. W. O'Brien of the Canadian Embassy, whose diplomatic immunity may have been violated: Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia, the Southern elder statesman; and half a dozen Congressmen.

The raid was led by Carmine Bellino, a Senate rackets investigator, who was armed with a subpoena signed by Arkansas' Sen. John McClellan. The document demanded "all original records of local and long-distance calls charged to the hotel telephone as well as all restaurant, valet, drugstore, and other charges made to all guests during the period from January 1, 1957.'

Bellino apparently suspected that the Woodner Hotel, where Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa also lives, had been burning its telephone records. At 1:30 a. m., the Senate sleuths barged into the switchboard room with Bellino in the van.

Millie Price, an operator, started for the door, but Bellino blocked her with a restraining

By Drew Pearson

"She's only going to the restroom," explained Sally Hucks, the chief operator. "If you want to go with her, go right ahead." Bellino reconsidered and allowed Mrs. Price to leave unescorted. Then he announced gruffly that he had come for the telephone records and wouldn't leave the room until he got them. He was still repeating his demand to the adamant chief operator when Mrs. Price returned. Wheeling around, Bellino barked into her face: "You have been burning records, isn't that so?' "No sir," protested Millie.

Bellino Backs Pown Meanwhile, Mrs. Hucks returned to the switchboard to summon the hotel's attorney, E. R. Williamson, who dressed hastily and rushed to the scene. The attorney explained to Bellino that the hotel had already started to comply vith the committee's subpoena. He pointed out three boxes full of telephone-call slips which, he said, the switchboard girls had been collecting.

But the grim gumshoe triumphantly pulled out two slips which he claimed had been plucked from the hotel incinerator. Neither call had been placed by Hoffa or his henchmen

Then Bellino began searching the switchboard room, yanking out papers from the files. After he had gone through everything including the operators' purses, he started to leave with the papers he had seized. He also instructed his men to pick up the boxes of telephone slips.

But Williamson stopped them with a warning.

"I am not turning anything over to you," he said. "You have entered the room without a search warrant. You have gone through every file we have. So, when you leave, you are not to come back and ask for any more records. We have tried to cooperate with you, and now you have gotten all you came to get. I am not turning them over to you; you are taking them.

This little speech persuaded Bellino to leave the records at the hotel until morning. He ordered Williamson to keep them under lock and made him "totally responsible." Subsequently, the papers were turned over to the rackets committee which now has a complete record of the personal calls made from the hotel by Cardinal Spellman, Senator Russell, diplomat O'Brien, and all other guests. Note-The Cardinal had ended a two-day stay at the Woodner less than a week before the Senate raid. He also had stopped at the hotel a half dozen times in

Yet the succession at the Defense Department really deserves more attention than the succession at the State Department, if only because the right name for Donald Quarles is "Mister Missile Gap.'

Quarles has been a leading defense policy-maker during the whole of the last six years, when the world balance of military power has tilted so dangerously against us. He has had much authority over our missile programs, and the missile gap is the worst of our problems. He currently opposes the measures that might bridge the gap. And if he had had his way in the past, there would be no mere gap, but a vast unbridgeable, inescapable abyss.

There are rather serious things to say about the foreordained next Secretary of Defense; but min may be serious if it means they are easily documented. In brief, when Quarles first entered the Department as Assistant Secretary for Research and Development, the American long range missile program was in a consistent with the beginning. Incondition that was appalling to deed the great tragedy of the

The cause of this condition was bad specifications. The development of compact, relatively light-weight H-bomb warheads had not been foreseen or allowed for by the Air Staff. Missile designs were therefore required to carry warheads of impossible weight and size. Thus the missiles under development were then either doubtfully useful or actually impossible. In the first category were Snark and Navajo projects, both now terminated. In the impossible category was the Atlas as then conceived, as a vast, hopelessly unwieldy missile with a take-off weight of

But once again, Donald Quarles fought the whole plan for the missile-watching radars. The project was smuggled though, without Quarles's concurrence, by the Talbott-Gardner team. Khrushchev has specifically warned that he intends to beat the United States in the realm of world economics. He intends to take over American export markets. He is convinced he can do it because he utilizes slave labor.

The ridiculous statement is now being made vociferously in Washington that "spreading the job" will relieve unemployment. As a matter of fact this policy of reduced production of wealth will eventually produce greater unemployment by pricing labor out of the market, and by reducing the purchasing power of the American

By George E. Sokolsky

What Can We Do?

A mother, Mrs. Virginia F. Hicks, and a wife, Mrs. Loretta K. Ferguson, write to me about A/2C James E. Ferguson Jr. He is one of the 11 airmen missing in Soviet Russia. He is one of the American airmen who was shot down by the Russians over Armenian territory on September 2, 1958. About them we know nothing. Our government knows nothing. They are "now missing" and "presumed to be dead."

Why do not the White House and the Pentagon send a form letter to such mothers and wives saying, "We do not know how to answer your inquiries. We do not know what to do. We are dealing with monsters who do not even respect the dead. It is just too bad that it is your son (or husband) who had to give his life for his country in this fashion."

Instead, these relatives of the missing men get diplomatic procedure. They write to their Congressman. He writes to the White House, sending a carbon copy to the constituent. The White House forwards the letter to the proper slot in the Pentagon. Somebody in the Pentagon writes a polite, formal letter which is assumed to jerk tears from the aforesaid mother or wife. The Congressman sends the original of this letter to the mother or wife to show his interest in his constituents. The letter is meant to be treasured. The Congressman says he can do no more short of getting the President to declare war on Soviet Russia.

Mrs. Hicks asks:

The kin are left to wonder why the President is willing to go to war for the Berlin Germans, the Lebanese, and practically everyone else, but will not lift a hand for his own American soldiers.

It is not so easy, Mrs. Hicks. In the good old days it was possible to make war on Spain because the Spaniards cut off the ear of an Englishman called Jenkins. And General Smedley Butler of the Marine Corps went through a country because a Marine was missing. But those days are over as since Soviet Russia became a Power, treaties are of no avail and international law is meaningless. The Russians do not recognize whatever is irrational and that is irrational which they regard as such.

It is all very simple. When fairly decent people get to quarrelling, they generally fight according to some preconceived rules of decency, but the Russians do not care to fight that way because it seems so stupid. In a word, if fight you must, then fight to a finish. Stomp on the enemy's face and gouge out his eyes. Give him the punishment of the thousand cuts. Keep him alive but tear his tongue out. Anything you can think of and are pleased to do. That being the case, precisely what can we do about it when our airmen fall into their hands?

Mrs. Hicks uses the phrase, "this cynical abandonment of loyal Americans." Short of war, there seems to be little else that can be done. Our State Department can, of course, send some notes to Russia, but the reply will be that they know nothing about it but heard that an American plane has had some trouble somewhere. The President can talk to the first Russian that comes his way, as Eisenhower did to Mikoyan, and Mikoyan probably said that he would take the matter up with the proper authorities which means nobody at all. How many Americans are still held in

So we appeal to the International Red Cross to find out about the 11 missing American airmen. And the Red Cross sends a man from Geneva in Switzerland to Moscow and everybody is sorry that such an incident happened. The Red Cross is sorry too, but what can they do?

Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Ferguson may feel that I too am cynical. But like most Americans, I cannot afford to be. My sons may have to do their stint under similar tough circumstances. What I am describing is this: if both parties to a quarrel are gentlemanly, they will look after each other's wounded, missing and dead; will let the families know through proper channels what the situation is, perhaps through the International Red Cross.

However, we are dealing with Tartars, with the descendants of the Golden Horde, the offspring of Genghis Khan. What courtesy is to be expected of Political forces supporting Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination are locked in a quiet but deadly struggle. The competition has become so keen that some GOP political pros are concerned that it may further reduce the party's already outside chance of winning the White House in 1960.

When personal considerations caused Meade Alcorn to resign as chairman of the Republican National Committee, the primary consideration in picking his successor was a desire to keep the factional fight from breaking out in the open. It was for this reason that word was passed to Republican politicians and newsmen that the President wanted Senator Thurston B. Morton, of Ken-

Further, Morton was secreting did the President, in speaking ly consulted and chosen by the President last January, when Alcorn first let Mr. Eisenhower hin to return to his Connecticut Senator Robert A. Neither the Rockefeller nor Nixon factions are completely happy about the Morton choice, but neither side sought to press its own candidate for fear of losing a political war because of bad strategy in a preliminary skirmish.

Morton is viewed as a partman, a sort of caretaker until one side or the other musters sufficient strength to make an issue out of the GOP chairmanship. President Eisenhower may have started a new fad. He is wearing pictures of his four grandchildren on the face of his wrist watch. The watch face has likenesses of David, 11. Barbara Ann, 9, Susan, 7, and Mary Jean, All are the children of his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and his daughter-in-law, Barbara.

The tragic withdrawal from public office of John Foster Dulles touched the President deeply. His voice was choked with emotion at his Wednesday press conference. For the past ten days, Washhoped the press would emphasize ington has been preoccupied with the succession at the State Department. The preoccupation was needless. Christian A. Hercessors, there was every reason ter was the obvious and almost necessary choice to succeed John Foster Dulles: and he is also a man of proven stature, character, and courage, who ought to do a first rate job.

No one, meanwhile, seems to be at all preoccupied with the succession at the Defense Department, although the early departure of Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy was foreseen some the heart of America far better time ago. It is taken for granted that when McElroy goes, his Under Secretary. Donald Quarles, will get the job. Certainly the President will have the utmost difficulty in finding any other replacement for McElroy.

> Yet the succession at the Defense Department really deserves more attention than the succession at the State Department, if only because the right name for Donald Quarles is "Mister Missile Gap.

Quarles has been a leading defense policy-maker during the whole of the last six years, when the world balance of military power has tilted so dangerously against us. He has had much authority over our missile programs, and the missile gap is the worst of our problems. He currently opposes the measures that might bridge the gap. And if he had had his way in the past, there would be no mere gap, but a vast unbridgeable, inescap-

There are rather serious things to say about the foreordained next Secretary of Defense; but they are easily documented. In brief, when Quarles first entered the Department as Assistant Secretary for Research and Development, the American long range missile program was in a condition that was appalling to contemplete.

The cause of this condition was had specifications. The development of compact, relatively light-weight H-bomb warheads had not been foreseen or allowed for by the Air Staff. Missile designs were therefore required to a stamped, self-addressed envel- carry warheads of impossible weight and size. Thus the missiles under development were then either doubtfully useful or actually impossible. In the first category were Snark and Navajo projects, both now terminated. In the impossible category was the Atlas as then conceived, as a vast, hopelessly unwieldy mis-mann Committee report. The principal initial change was the complete re-design of Atlas, as a workable missile built around the new, much lighter weight warheads the Atomic Energy Commission was perfecting. Somewhat later, the decision to add the Titan project also grew out of the Von Neumann report. Without Titan, this country would not even be in sight of having a long range ballistic missile capable of being placed in a fully hard pad. But once again, Donald Quarles sharply opposed the inauguration of the Titan project; and Talbott and Gardner had to fight with tooth and claw to win the

Even the re-design of Atlas and the order for Titan would have been fruittless, however, without the establishment in Turkey of missile-watching radars. Nothing but the grim, indisputable intelligence derived from these radars could have driven the Eisenhower administration to spend the necessary sums for serious development of the big missiles. But once again, Donald Quarles fought the whole plan for the missile-watching radars. The project was smuggled though, without Quarles's concurrence, by the Talbott-Gardner team. In truth the country owes much to these two men, one of whom was later disgraced, while the other was briskly dismissed for his

Such is the early Quarles record, in the formative period. The later record has been wholly consistent with the beginning. Indeed the great tragedy of the hapless McElroy's service as Defense Secretary has been his choice of Quarles as his chief advisor. But with the missile gap growing more perilous with each passing month, "Mr. Missile Gap" will no doubt become Defense Secretary when McElroy
